

ABSTRACTMEDIA HANDLING SYSTEM

5 A media handling system in which candidate video sequences are displayed on a display screen in schematic form for selection by a user comprises means for detecting human faces in the candidate video sequences; a display screen for displaying representations of the candidate video sequences for selection by a user, each representation including one or more images representing human faces derived from the respective video
10 sequences; and a user control for defining a set of one or more of the video sequences.

Figure 20.